Dear Mr. Ishikuma,

thank you for your proposal of the OEM agreement between Yamatake and RMG Messtechnik.
I apologize for not getting back sooner to you.

We have discussed the agreement internally and have made some minor changes and amendments to your proposal, which we ask you to accept. Additionally we have come to the conclusion that we need to make a new agreement that replaces the existing agreement.

The other commercial issues that we had addressed in our meeting still need to be solved. We have purchased 23 units from Yamatake over the last 2 years under the existing OEM agreement that RMG has not been able to use because of the known reasons. This has caused a significant burden with a capital employed and the subsequent financing cost over the last two years. As we had explained personally the non moving of the gas chromatographs over this long period of time will require us to depreciate the inventory by 100% according the rules implied to us through our auditors. To avoid this and to have a fair burden sharing of the significant delay we need to find a mutually agreed solution before year end (latest until Dec. 12, 2008). From our point of view there are basically 3 options:

1. Yamatake takes back 20 of the 23 units with the invoiced price to RMG by Dec. 15, 2008 and RMG resumes the purchases according to the new contract as of February 2009.
2. The already purchased 23 units by RMG will be accounted for in the new contract and deducted from the contractual total purchase volume of 75 units over 3 years. In this case RMG will resume the purchase of further products when the stored volume has been sold by RMG. Additionally RMG will receive a credit note from Yamatake for the price difference between the old price and the new price plus a compensation for the financing cost for a period of 18 months at a capital cost of 8%/year.
3. A compromise between option 1 and 2.

We would like to have your opinion until November 30th, so we can mutually settle the issue before year end and can have a fresh start together in 2009.

With best regards,

RMG Messtechnik GmbH
