		VDA recommendation 232.101 on declarable substances. The supplier guarantees that the metallic materials of supplied products are free of ionizing radiation. This is the case if the specific total activity of the metallic materials is considerably smaller than the value 0.1 Becquerel by gramme (By/g) or if during testing using appropriate measuring devices the metallic materials do not show any signs of ionizing radiation that exceed the normal environmental radiation within the scope of measuring accuracy on the day of the measurements. The supplier exempts the orderer from any claims of third parties against the orderer or its customers which can be asserted in case of violation of this guarantee.
